"Only the wakeful, with eyes to the skies,
See how the night wears its jeweled disguise
While dreamers lie blind to the velvet above,
The sleepless inherits the stars silent love".

" Night keeps its splendor for restless souls,
Who trades their slumber for silver-lit scrolls.

The sky writes verses in stardust and fire,
Read only by those who with darkness conspire".

Between the clouds of pitch and deep,
The moon cuts through like diamond proud.
And crowns themselves are the king of night".

The shining moon steals every eye,
And its glow all reason dies.

All hearts go wandering far and far.

Forget the world it left outside.

This is the secret every gleaming night keeps.

Its story is told only to those who don't sleep.

The dark writes in stealing light for wakeful eyes,

They awake and read the sky like verses on glass.
